7. Aims & Objectives

This course aims to deal with both first and second language acquisition, with the emphasis being on the latter. Theories of first and second language acquisition are introduced with the aim of providing students with the tools to evaluate theories in light of research and their own experience. Specific problems and important patterns of first and second language acquisition processes are compared and discussed against the background of the introduced theories. Students will have practice analyzing real language data. Emphasis will also be placed on the impact of individual differences in second language acquisition.

8. Course content

- (1) First language acquisition
  - the behaviorist position
  - the innatist position
- (2) Second language acquisition

- comparison of first and second language acquisition processes
  - the contrastive approach
  - the monitor model
  - the interlanguage theory
  - interactionist theories
  - sociolinguistic and sociocultural theories
- (3) Individual differences and second language learning
- (4) Learner Language

9. Course Intended Learning outcomes (CILOs)

CILO	By the end of the course, students should be able to:
CILO 1	Explain the processes of first and second language learning
CILO 2	Explain the social and cultural influences over language learning
CILO 3	Analyze learner problems in learning a new language
CILO 4	Research on first and second language learning to further study or verify relevant theories

10. Teaching & Learning Activities (TLAs)

CILO No.	TLAs
CILO1/ CILO2/ CILO3	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The instructor will introduce to students concepts and theories that are relevant in first and second language acquisition</li> <li>• Students will discuss in-class about their personal experience in language learning</li> <li>• Students will be asked to analyze their own problems and/or others' problems in learning a new language</li> <li>• Journal articles will be assigned to students for reading and evaluation</li> </ul>
